

Information on mid-term evaluation

Mid-term evaluation is part of the education process at doctoral schools and was introduced in The Law on Higher Education and Science of 2018. For four-year education programs it falls on the 24th month (after the 24th month) and for three-year education programs it falls between the 18th and 24th month.

As a leading centre of education for Doctoral Students, The Doctoral School in the Humanities attaches great importance to the evaluation procedure, its qualitative dimension, as well as the experiences gained from the evaluation – both for Doctoral Students and the School.

An evaluation schedule, along with individual milestones, will be announced by the 15th of March. The schedule will include dates outlining the evaluation process. The attached files contain the approved Regulations together with its Annexes.
